INTRODUCTION Imam al-Bukhari, the sultan of hadith, was born in Bukhara in 810. From the age of 10, he memorized hadiths and dedicated his whole life to the world of hadiths. The thinker lived in Hijaz, Egypt, Iraq, Khorasan and other cities to fully study the science of hadith and its various branches, and collected hadiths that are valuable for the human spiritual world. Among the works written by Imam al-Bukhari are "Al-Jami' al-sahih" ("Authentic Bukhari"), "Al-adab ul-mufrad" ("Masterpieces of Literature"), "at-Tarikh wa al-kabir" (The Great History), "Kitab asma' as-sahaba" ("The Book of the Names of the Companions"), "at-Tarikh al-awsat" (Medium history), "at-Tarikh as - saghir" (Small history), "Kitab ar-riqaq" (Refined book about), "Bir al-volidayn" (Respect for father - mother), "al- Adab al- mufrad" (Collection of hadiths about morals) and others can be included. More than twenty works of Imam al-Bukhari were written in various fields of hadith science, and each of them has its own educational value.

MAIN PART In Islamic teachings, the Holy Qur'an is considered the second social-political, moral, and legal document. The work "al-Jami al-sahih" is known in the world as "Sahih al-Bukhari". "The number of reliable hadiths included in this work of Al-Bukhari is 7275, including repeated ones, and 4000 without repeated ones. [1,28] How many copies of this masterpiece are being translated into different languages of the world as a way to the happiness of two worlds. In Alloma's works, the ideas of perfection, people being kind to each other, always helping each other, living in harmony, honest work, goodness and goodness lie in the center of his teachings on moral education. Imam Bukhari believes that only people with a pure heart, believers, who do not harm others, who only do good and help people, are morally perfect. From the hadiths of Imam Bukhari: "Stay away from harming people. Because this is a charity for yourself." That is, a person who benefits others is the best person. Islam does not approve of a person being conceited and selfish, thinking only of his own interests. Allah appreciates His servants who are selfless, sincere and needy for others

(Bukhari, 2518) [2,6] So, the essence of the hadith is that people should not only help each other with material things, but should help those in need depending on their material and spiritual ability, and if they do not have the ability, they should do good to others without harming others at all. recognized. In his work "Al-Adab al-mufrad" Allama classified hadiths about human morals and spiritual maturity on various topics and gave comments. In the first chapters of the work, filial duties towards parents, pleasing parents, fulfilling their rights, obeying the command of parents, doing good to them, not hurting them, love for relatives - kindness, compassion, love for young children, women - to be kind, to reconcile children and adults when they quarrel and fight, to act humbly when building a building and other things, the evil of arrogance and swearing, the evil of oppression, truthfulness and lying, honest and illegal, meritorious and sinful deeds, to human spiritual life important problems were discussed.

For example, "Whoever wants abundant sustenance and long life, let him visit his relatives (continue relations with them)." (Bukhari, 2986). There is a recommendation in the hadith "silai rahm", that is, to strengthen ties with relatives. "Silai rahm" is not forgetting kinship ties and responsibilities. If there are emigrants among the relatives, help and attention should not be spared from them. Breaking the bond of kinship is considered a great sin. A good relationship with relatives is the reason for an increase in sustenance, a peaceful and joyful life, and a long life. Close neighborly relations are glorified and its development is encouraged. From the hadith: Our mother Hazrat Aisha narrates: "One day the Messenger of God said: "O Messenger of God! I have two neighbors.

Which of these should I give a gift to?' I asked. The Messenger of God replied: "The one whose door is closer to him"" (Bukhari, "Adab", 78). [4] In this hadith, a valuable recommendation is given regarding the rights of the neighbor. It is clear that a person has not one, but several neighbors. It is very difficult to share a gift with all these things in mind. How to behave in such a situation is shown in the hadith. Doing good to your nearest neighbor is a wise thing to do. Therefore, the scholar's recognition that a person can be rewarded or punished for every act, action, and moral aspect he shows in this world is a call for the development of kindness, goodness, kindness, and goodness among people. In general, in the works of Imam Bukhari: honesty, purity, respect for parents, goodness, brotherhood, friendship, loyalty, kindness, generosity, patience - contentment, goodness, justice, solidarity, care, forgiveness, indifference, knowledge, which form the moral education of a person. introduces qualities.
