Problems in the relationship between teachers and the public. It is no secret that until recently in the activities of teachers there were a number of problems that prevented the conduct of lessons in a high quality and engaged in pedagogical activity. Today, Information and communication technologies are rapidly entering the life of society and are increasingly showing their impact. In turn, along with modern education to the younger generation, it is necessary to educate them in the spirit of universal and national values, high human qualities, to protect their minds and hearts from ideological, moral and informational threats, to pay special attention to the issues of formation of ideological immunity in them[1]. It is necessary to protect the younger generation from the effects of low-level "mass culture", ideas that are absolutely alien to our national originality, worldview and thinking, artificial "values and traditions", in a word, spiritual threats. Work in this regard should first of all begin with the improvement of the rules of conduct of educational institutions. In the formation of the spirituality of the reader, along with pedagogical aspects such as the educational process, propaganda work and the demonstration of a lesson, the issues of the essence, decoration, quality of the educational weapons used by the students also play an important role.

In particular: most of the notebooks that are consumed by various printing houses, especially those that come from foreign countries, do not have educational merits. Also, the need for the user of the mobile communication service to know and follow the rules of its proper use is increasing[2]. The next problem in the relationship between society and teachers is the attitude of parents towards teachers. TODAY, Parents are more inclined to blame the teachers themselves on all the difficulties, to protect their children even if they are wrong.

General rules of etiquette of community members in schoolchildren

Harmony, mutual trust, respect, care for each other and harmony in secondary schools of general education are important conditions in the interaction of community members. The basic principle of interaction in secondary schools of general education – the right of one person should not violate the right of another person[3]. Including:

- the word husband of a member of the team-does not give him the right to slander, insult, use indecent words, which are expressed in gross disregard of the generally accepted rules of conduct in relations;

- e'tiqod erkinligi - praying in educational institutions does not give the right to go to mosques during lessons;

- * dress-the husband does not give the right to come to educational institutions in open and thick clothes, which have a negative impact on the head of clothing, religious ceremony clothes, etc., not specified in his Charter.

Members of the team are in the midst of a general secondary school and must come to him in a harmonic dress. It is forbidden for them to come to the educational institution in an excessively narrow dress or religious prayer dress, with metal chains, brooches, various beads on the body, or in sports clothes and shoes, in which the attention of people is attracted, the shoulders, chest and abdomen, as well as the upper parts of the knees remain open[4].

In an educational institution, it is customary for every member of the team to be respected among themselves, that members of the team should refer to him as "you" in the relationship. It is strictly forbidden for them to disrespect each other, to use indecent words in their relations.

When team members walk on the territory of secondary schools in general, they should respect each other, walk on the right side of the corridor or corridor, when they encounter each other, of course, greet. Bunda students are advised to greet teachers, Boys Girls, and young adults first (in these cases, hand-to-hand asking is an exception, and older individuals or women may receive hand-to-hand transmission in response to them only after the first hand-to-hand transmission) [5]. In case of traffic jams at the entrance to the premises of educational institutions, students should give way to teachers and employees, Boys-Girls, High-grade pupils-primary schoolchildren. It is forbidden to place on the Internet or use it for various purposes related to the internal relations of the secondary school, which are not inherent in national and universal values or which are related to the internal relations of the secondary school. It is strictly forbidden to prepare, store, distribute and promote information that does not belong to the educational institution in computers, as well as any material that promotes various film productions, illegal religious information, indecent, national, racial, ethnic, religious Justice.

In conclusion, teachers and students should be able to arrive at work and the lesson on time on the basis of the approved schedule of classes, make productive use of the working day and the course process. It is strictly forbidden to commit any offenses in an educational institution, including slandering, insulting, injuring the body, playing drugs, psychotropic drugs, alcohol and other games based on tobacco consumption, quarrels, gambling and tavakalism.
